Phase 1: Planning the Research

1.1 Topic and Title

Teachers report more assignments copied from websites or produced with AI writing tools without acknowledgement. The group therefore chose the title: Students' Awareness of Plagiarism and Their Use of Artificial Intelligence (AI) Writing Tools in Schoolwork at a Secondary School in Trinidad and Tobago.

1.2 Permission and Schedule of Activities

A permission letter was sent to the Principal (Appendix A). The schedule of activities (Appendix B) lists 13 activities from 8 January to 13 March 2026.

1.3 Research Questions

1. How well do upper-school students understand what plagiarism is?
2. How do students use AI writing tools in their schoolwork, and do they acknowledge this use?
3. How familiar are students with citing sources in APA style?

1.4 Background

Intellectual property is a creation of the mind, such as writing or music, protected by laws that give its creator economic and moral rights, including the right to be named as the author (World Intellectual Property Organization [WIPO], 2020). Plagiarism, presenting another person's words or ideas as your own, breaches these moral rights, and credible research requires every source to be acknowledged (Caribbean Examinations Council [CXC], 2024; Small, 2026). AI writing tools generate text from a prompt, so work produced with them is not wholly the student's own and must be acknowledged. APA style provides in-text citations and a reference list for doing this (American Psychological Association, 2020).

Students who plagiarise risk a zero for SBA work and fail to build their own research skills (Calabash Point Secondary, 2019), while teachers cannot assess fairly when they cannot tell whose work they are marking.

1.5 Purpose of the Research

This study aims to measure students' understanding of plagiarism, their use and acknowledgement of AI writing tools and their APA citation skills, so that the school can update its academic honesty guidance.

Phase 2: Method of Investigation

2.1 Type of Research

A quantitative survey was used because scored scenarios and closed items give counts and percentages that can be compared and charted, and anonymity encourages honest answers. A document search of the school's academic honesty policy showed whether gaps in students' knowledge are matched by gaps in the policy.

2.2 Population and Sampling Procedure

The population was all Form 4 and Form 5 students. Systematic sampling selects every *k*th member of a list after a random start: starting at the second name, every third name was taken from the combined Form 4 and Form 5 registers until 40 students were selected (Table 1). This spread the sample evenly across both forms and all classes.

2.3 Data Collection Instrument and Procedure

The anonymous questionnaire (Appendix C) has 15 items: Section B, including three short scenarios, answers Research Question 1, Section C Research Question 2 and Section D Research Question 3. A nine-point checklist (Appendix D) compared the policy with Section IX of the syllabus. The questionnaire was completed in form time on 3 February 2026.

Phase 3: Presentation and Discussion of Findings

3.1 Presentation of Findings

Answers were entered in Microsoft Excel and summarised with COUNTIF, COUNTIFS, SUM and percentage formulae (Appendix E).

Shows a recent review date	No	Last reviewed in 2019.

Note. Document search of the policy (Calabash Point Secondary, 2019): 3 points covered, 2 partly, 4 missing.

3.2 Discussion of Findings

Research Question 1. Most students defined plagiarism correctly (77.5%) and recognised the AI essay as plagiarism (72.5%), but only 55% saw that an uncited paraphrase is plagiarism and just 37.5% knew that a quoted, cited paragraph is not (Table 2, Figure 1). In addition, 31 students (77.5%) admitted copying text without citing it (Table 3).

Research Question 2. In all, 29 students (72.5%) have used AI writing tools (Table 4), mainly to explain topics (21) and brainstorm ideas (17), while 9 used them to write whole paragraphs (Table 5, Figure 2). Only 4 always tell their teacher, 17 never do, and 9 never check the information (Table 6).

Research Question 3. Only 7 students (17.5%) can use APA style, while 14 have never heard of it (Table 7, Figure 3). Just 12 chose the correct in-text citation and 16 have written a reference list (Table 8, Table 9).

3.3 Analysis and Interpretation

Students understand plagiarism as copying but not as failing to acknowledge ideas: they over-label quoted and cited work and under-label uncited paraphrases. APA knowledge makes the difference: 85.7% of students who can use APA chose the correct citation and 85.7% judged Item 3 correctly, compared with 14.3% of those who have not heard of it (Table 8). AI use is widespread but largely undisclosed; eight of the nine students who used AI to write whole paragraphs never tell their teacher. These gaps mirror the policy, which omits APA, intellectual property and AI tools (Table 10), and only 17 students know the rules exist.

3.4 Recommendations and Implementation Strategy

1. The school should update its academic honesty policy to require APA referencing and to state when AI writing tools may be used and how their use must be acknowledged.
2. All Form 4 classes should receive lessons on quoting, paraphrasing and APA citation, using scenarios like those in this study.

Implementation strategy: In April 2026 the Principal will set up a committee of the Vice-Principal, the Head of English, the EDPM teacher and two student representatives to revise the policy by 30 June 2026. English and EDPM teachers will then teach three 40-minute citation lessons to every Form 4 class in September 2026.

Conclusion

Students can define plagiarism but misjudge quoting and paraphrasing, use AI writing tools widely without acknowledging them and seldom know APA style. Because the school policy shares these gaps, an updated policy and direct teaching of citation skills should improve academic honesty and SBA work.

TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO

Dear Mrs Alleyne

REQUEST FOR PERMISSION TO SURVEY STUDENTS AND REVIEW THE ACADEMIC HONESTY POLICY

We are Arianna Ramdial, Keron Mohammed and Nia Baptiste, Form 5 students of Calabash Point Secondary. For our CSEC Electronic Document Preparation and Management (EDPM) School-Based Assessment we are researching students' awareness of plagiarism and their use of artificial intelligence (AI) writing tools.

The purpose of the study is to find out how well students understand plagiarism, how they use AI writing tools and whether they can cite sources in APA style, so that the school can update its academic honesty guidance.

We request permission to select 40 Form 4 and Form 5 students by taking every third name from the class registers, and to ask them to complete an anonymous 15-item questionnaire during form time on 3 February 2026; it takes about 15 minutes. We also request a copy of the school's academic honesty policy so that we can compare it with the CSEC syllabus.

Taking part is voluntary. No names will be collected, no student will be reported to a teacher for any answer, and results will be reported only as totals. Completed forms will be shredded after our report has been marked.

If you have any questions, please contact me at (868) 555-0193 or arianna.ramdial@calabashpoint.edu.tt, or our EDPM teacher, Mr Rajesh Persad, at the school telephone number above. A copy of the questionnaire is enclosed. Thank you for considering our request.

Yours sincerely
